With his understanding that property is about people, Doug Shoemark is the auctioneer you need during a process that can be stressful at times. He combines his wisdom and experience with calmness and control to relax sellers and buyers before an auction.

Doug has an obvious passion for his craft, an intricate knowledge of the auction process, and a mature understanding of the thinking and emotions experienced by both sellers and buyers on the day. This enables him to tailor his approach for everyone involved and ensure great outcomes.

His exceptional communication skills and energy empower him to generate enthusiastic bidding, achieving the best result for sellers and a positive experience for bidders.

"Buying and selling property is one of the biggest things most people will ever do, and I take that responsibility very seriously", says Doug. "At the same time, I aim to make the process enjoyable and engaging for every participant".

Behind the smile is a sound understanding of the market and legislation, and a strong commitment to customer service and fair play. Doug's agents and vendors are confident in the knowledge that he consistently exceeds their expectations.
